200 VOICE CHAPEL CHOIR

The Chapel Program

At the heart of the University is the Chapel. Through the years its program has occupied a vital place in student life. You are invited to unite with members of the University community in the interdenominational Sunday Service of Worship. The Reverend Dr. Howard Wilkinson, Chaplain to the University, will deliver the sermon on "Freshman Sunday." Throughout the year distinguished guest preachers will join the Dean of the Chapel, the Chaplain to the University and members of the Faculty in delivering the Chapel sermons.

The music of the Chapel, long a most cherished part of the University worship, is provided by Mildred L. Hendrix, University Organist, and the student choir under leadership of Professor Paul Young.

In addition to the regular Sunday morning services all students are invited to attend and participate in the special programs in the Chapel such as organ and choral recitals. Students are encouraged to serve in the Chapel by active membership in the ushering and collecting committees of the Chapel.

You are invited to make the Chapel your church home while you live in the University.

The Duke University Religious Council

The University Religious Council is the student-faculty group whose concern is the total religious life of the University including the University Chapel and its various activities. Presidents and advisors of all student religious organizations, elected student representatives from the undergraduate colleges and schools, faculty and administration members, the Dean of the Chapel, the Associate Directors of Religious Life, and the Chaplain to the University are members of the Council. In its activities the Council is directly responsible to the Vice-President of the University in the Division of Student Life who is also a member of the Council, and through him to the President of the University. The Council welcomes and seeks to include in its program all interested members of the University community who subscribe to the statement of the Aims of the University, which are reproduced on the back cover of this booklet.

The Religious Life Staff of the University is under the direction of the Chaplain to the University and is responsible to the President of the University through Dr. H. J. Herring, Vice-President of the University in the Division of Student Life. Consisting of the Chaplain to the University, two Associate Directors of Religious Life, and chaplains to denominational groups, the Religious Life Staff reflects the concern of the University, expressed in its creed and established by its tradition, to have religion play a vital role in the total student life at Duke.

Special Observances Committee

The Special Observances Committee of the University Religious Council supervises the planning of special religious services and events in the University community, particularly those of an inter-denominational and major character. Outstanding leaders in all fields of thought and life are brought to the campus to share their insights and knowledge with the university community. Science and religion, moral concerns, preparation for marriage and family living, religion and the arts, vocational choice—these and many other themes are explored by world leaders of Christendom.

A major event planned for the coming year is the visit of Dr. Charles A. Coulson to the campus. He is director of the Mathematical Institute at Oxford University, England. A distinguished chemist, mathematician, physicist, Professor Coulson is also a Methodist preacher, and he will preach in the Duke Chapel, in addition to giving lectures in various university departments.

Interfaith and Fellowship Committee

Under the sponsorship of the Interfaith and Fellowship Committee of the University Religious Council, events are planned for students of diverse religious, racial, and national backgrounds. Three traditional programs are planned and supervised by this committee. The first is an international reception to be held October 1 to introduce foreign students from over twenty-five countries to the students, faculty, and the religious groups of the University. Another is the Interfaith Dinner which is designed to promote interfaith cooperation, fellowship, and understanding. The third is an interracial, interfaith group of students from North Carolina College, the University of North Carolina, and Duke.

GETTING ACQUAINTED AT THE INTERNATIONAL TEA

FACULTY DISCUSSION GROUP

Faculty Program Committee

The Faculty Program Committee was activated as a new committee of the University Religious Council in September, 1956. The duty of the Committee as stated in the By-Laws is to plan a religious program suitable to the needs and interests of the faculty and administrative members of the University.

DEAN HAROLD SCHILLING, OF PENN STATE, WITH DUKE FACULTY MEMBERS, FOLLOWING A FORUM.

COUNCIL DISCUSSES GRADUATE ACTIVITIES

Graduate Religious Life Program

For the students in the Graduate and Professional Schools of the University, the Graduate Religious Life Program offers opportunity for the broadening of the Christian intellect together with opportunities for fellowship. The program is designed to present pertinent intellectual and social problems to the graduate students so that these matters may be considered in the light of the intellectual disciplines and the Christian faith.

The program is in the form of a series of dinner-discussion meetings and seminars, held monthly through the academic year. At these meetings, the topics for discussion are presented by outstanding speakers. Since membership in the group is drawn from all of the academic disciplines of the University, a well-rounded and diverse group is obtained which lends itself to stimulating discussions.

As the only inter-departmental organization at the graduate level on the university campus, the primary purposes of the Graduate Religious Life program is a dual one: to offer opportunities for fellowship and to stimulate thought along religious lines.

Cabot Society

Composed of students in the Medical School and in the School of Nursing, the Cabot Society seeks to cultivate an understanding of the spiritual as well as the physical aspects of illness. The Society has no formal membership, and it is administered by a steering committee. Named for Dr. Richard C. Cabot, this Society shares his conviction that the patient should be treated as a total person. All medical and nursing students are cordially invited to attend the bi-weekly dinner-discussions of this group which are held in the Private Dining Room of the Men's Graduate Center.

CABOT MEMBERS

Law and Religion Group

Organized in the Spring of 1959, this group is similar in purpose to the Cabot Society, in that it seeks to bring to bear the resources of religion upon the problems of professional practice. Still without a formal name, the Law and Religion group meets bi-weekly, at 5:30 p.m., in the Men's Graduate Center, for dinner-discussions on the related areas of law and religion. All students in the School of Law are cordially invited to attend each meeting.

LAW AND RELIGION GROUP

Religious Activities in the School of Nursing

A student nurse works closely with not only the physical aspect of her patients, but may also become concerned with their spiritual and religious life. The Religious Activities Committee offers the student the opportunity for growth and development in this area through our many activities.

Each week we hold an evening vesper service for the patients in the hospital. During this period of devotion, the patients and students have time in which they may come to a greater understanding of themselves and their problems.

The outstanding event of the year is the Christmas Choral Communion held in the hospital for the patients. Dean Cleland and Chaplain Aitken officiate, and the Nurses' Choir provide Christmas music. For those who enjoy working with children, we have initiated a program of weekly Sunday School classes for the pediatric wards.

The committee also offers a number of activities primarily for the student. Among these are a vesper service for the freshmen during orientation, a Thanksgiving vesper service, and the opportunity to sing in the Nurses' Choir at the Easter Sunrise Service. The student may also participate in the University's religious activities such as the Chapel Choir, the Y.W.C.A. and the denominational student groups.

Through these activities, the religious life of the school and the student is enriched and we are better prepared to meet the challenges which confront us as nurses and in our daily lives.

BARBARA JOHNSON, CHAIRMAN

Edgemont Community Center

Edgemont Community Center, established in 1942 by what was then known as the Duke University Church, has become an important part of the life of the Edgemont neighborhood residents. The Center was started by the Chapel in the hope that it would serve as a place which would provide leisure-time activities for Edgemont families and give Duke University students an opportunity to develop leadership skills, learn program planning and gain insight into the field of social service.

The Center is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and features activities for pre-school, elementary school, and teenage groups. A Brownie troop, a drama club, cooking and sewing classes, dances, camping expeditions, and the usual sports are supervised by the workers at the Center. Food and vitamins the children receive as snacks are sometimes the most nourishing things many of them get all day.

Another important, although subtle, part of the program is the guidance given by the staff to the children and families of Edgemont. It is not at all unusual for the Director to visit the homes in an attempt to help a family come to an understanding of a problem and to try to make them more aware of the things they can do to help themselves to a better and more useful life.

Freshman Orientation

During Freshman Orientation week, there will be three opportunities to become acquainted with the religious organizations on campus. The first will be held on Freshman Sunday, September 15, beginning at 9:30 A.M., in Page Auditorium. This will be an inter-denominational presentation of religious life at Duke, including an introduction of the denominational chaplains and advisers, as well as the interdenominational staff.

The second opportunity will be at 11:00 A.M. on the same day, when the University Service of Worship will be held in the Duke Chapel. Dr. Howard C. Wilkinson, Chaplain to the University, will deliver the sermon, and a 200-voice choir, directed by Professor Paul Young, will give musical leadership in the service. Other members of the Religious Life Staff will take part in the service, and the Presiding Minister will be the Reverend Professor James T. Cleland, Dean of the Chapel.

The third function is Church Night, Friday, September 20. Beginning at 6:00 P.M., programs will be held in each of the denominational centers which are calculated to acquaint you with the program which your own denomination has in store for you during the coming year.

RAYMOND RATLIFF, PRESIDENT

Baptist Student Union

To all Baptists at Duke the Baptist Student Union extends a warm welcome and a cordial invitation to participate in its program of activities. The B.S.U. at Duke exists for the purpose of promoting among the Baptist constituency, by all means commensurate with the goal, a shared life in Christ and, through this life, a Christian ministry to the entire campus.

In virtue of having a new student center we have considerably expanded the program by which we seek to realize this goal. There are weekly supper-study groups, luncheon discussion meetings, weekly worship services, social action and mission programs, interdenominational projects and participation in the state and southwide Baptist Student Union programs. There is also a social-recreational program which includes outings, parties at the Center and a recreation room in the basement of the Center. Students are encouraged to make use of the Center not only at the times of the regularly scheduled programs, but throughout the week. There is a beautifully furnished library-study area, a kitchen, a room specially designated for quiet meditation and prayer for individuals or small groups, ping pong table, games for relaxation, etc. There is a resident couple on duty at the Center so that it may be used virtually any time from early morning until midnight by both men and women.

BAPTIST STUDENT CENTER

Christian Science Organization

Membership in this organization is a privilege of students and faculty members who are members of "The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass." Associate members and alumni members are also accepted.

During the school year, the organization holds weekly testimony meetings, according to the order of service for Wednesday Evening Meetings of Christian Science churches, given in "The Manual of The Mother Church." At these meetings, the Reader of the organization presents readings from the Bible and the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. These readings explain the healing power of Christian Science, especially the availability of Divine powers to meet the problems of the University community. The meeting is then opened for the giving of testimonies of Christian Science healing.

Special services are held during the year, such as the Thanksgiving meeting, the readings for which are found in "The Christian Science Quarterly," and meetings on the subject, "Preparing for Examinations."

The organization is proud to sponsor each year a free lecture on Christian Science, given by a member of the Board of Lectureship of "The Mother Church."

Episcopal Student Fellowship

The Duke Episcopal Fellowship meets to worship God and to serve the Church and the campus community. Its organization is similar to a parish with a vestry, altar guild, acolyte and lay reader's guild, as well as other committees concerned with the work of the Church. Corporate worship is the focal point of the group here on campus, with Holy Communion being celebrated every Sunday at 9:30 a.m. as well as during the week. Other facets of the life of the student center include reading and discussion groups, dramatic readings and social service work, especially in the fields of interracial and international student programs. The Center also furnishes a quiet place where students may come to study during exam time. Sunday evenings we usually have a dinner-discussion on various topics of faith and intellect.

The Episcopal Center is located between East and West campus on Alexander Street just off Myrtle Drive. We want you to stop in and make yourself at home when you come to the campus.

FRIENDS MEETING HOUSE, 404 ALEXANDER AVENUE

Society of Friends (Quakers)

The Durham Monthly Meeting of Friends extends to all new students and old ones too, a cordial invitation to attend their Meeting for Worship held each First Day (Sunday) Morning at 11 A.M. It goes without saying that we would welcome to membership all who are seriously interested in our faith and manner of worship, regardless of race, creed or national origin. Since our form of worship is so different perhaps a brief comment might be helpful.

The message which George Fox, founder of Quakerism, brought to his contemporaries was not a system of doctrine. He and his co-religionists had, as they believed, tapped afresh the sources of spiritual power in Christianity; they had found a new life, and they set out to live it uncompromisingly. For them Christianity ceased to be a set of forms that left the moral life untouched. Believing that the power for such a life, a life that demonstrates Christianity rather than merely preaching it, comes from the divine spark within each individual, it therefore must be sought within. We gather here accordingly each week in silence before God. Out of this corporate silence may come a spoken message, a deepened insight into truth or a clarifying sense of obligation.

Kiergaard has said: The present state of the world and the whole of life is diseased. If I were a Doctor and were asked for my advice, I should reply: Create silence! Bring men to silence.

Lutheran Student Association

ROGER C. ERICKSON, PRESIDENT

Lutherans at Duke are invited to participate in the activities and program of the Lutheran Student Association. This organization is autonomous and unlike any other in Lutheranism, and every year and every institution sees a different type group. All LSA's have the purpose of worship, study and witness, whatever form they may take.

The programs and activities vary, covering picnics, banquets, supper meetings, discussion groups, short retreats, forum-type presentations, student and visiting speakers presentations. Meetings have been held regularly in the past at various places at 6:30 p.m. on Sundays.

A beginning activity of the Lutheran student year is a reception by local Lutheran churches, and opportunity to visit and join in refreshments with members of local congregations at each of the local churches. During the year the churches will provide opportunity to continue congregational worship.

This year the LSA will have a new advisor who will guide new activities and studies throughout the year: the Reverend William R. Patton.

The LSA will meet you through its members, and invites participation in this arm of the Church in its life and mission on the campus.

Methodist Student Movement

The Methodist Student Movement extends a warm welcome to all Methodists at Duke and urges you to participate in its program. We are more than a collegiate extension of M.Y.F.—we are a group of the church devoted to a life together of worship, study and witness on the campus during the period when we are all pursuing the temporary but essential vocation of being fulltime students.

NANCI WELDON, PRESIDENT

As a student at Duke you will soon find yourself confronted with an array of varied and different courses which will challenge you, and you will be aware of the constant need to re-evaluate your thinking and your philosophy of life. Your participation in the Methodist Student Movement will aid in both stimulating and guiding this re-evaluation. We are fortunate enough to have our own student center which is located on Oregon Street between East and West Campuses. Our center, which is the focal point of all our denominational activities, contains ample facility for meetings and recreation. Weekly services of worship will be held on Sunday evening and Wednesday; a variety of study groups seek to broaden and deepen one's understanding of the Christian faith; and numerous projects and activities seek to serve the local Durham community. Our entire fellowship welcomes you to Duke and looks forward to your participation in the life and mission of our branch of the church.

METHODIST STUDENT CENTER

Fellowship of Christian Athletes

BUZZY HARRISON, PRESIDENT

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes is an informal fellowship composed of athletes from the various University athletic teams and of other interested persons on the Duke campus. It is an opportunity to get together with other athletes to study the Christian way of life as it is presented in the Bible and to discuss many of the problems which are commonly confronted each day.

The F.C.A. feels that in athletics there is an excellent opportunity to witness for Jesus Christ. During the past year we sent different members, individually and collectively, throughout North Carolina speaking to various banquet gatherings, young people's groups, and church congregations.

Our program on campus consists of weekly "huddle group" sessions and a special dinner meeting each month. We concluded our last school year with a picnic-vesper service in the Duke Forest with Dr. Thomas Langford of the Religion Department as our guest speaker.

The highlight of our year is the summer conference at Henderson Harbor, New York. Athletes from all over the country attend these conferences which are staffed by some of the most eminent men in the fields of athletics and religion. This is an experience everyone should have.

FELLOWSHIP OF CHRISTIAN ATHLETES

United Student Fellowship

Whether the United Student Fellowship meets to calmly discuss anger or to excitedly play volleyball, one would never suspect that the members represent at least three former denominations; the Congregational Christian, the Evangelical and Reformed, and the Disciples of Christ Churches. There is a continuing purpose of the United Student Fellowship that forms a kind of connection between the varied meetings of its program and the total life of the student at Duke. When together, the members seek the meaning of being followers of Christ, and when apart, they seek to express their increased understanding.

September will find United Student Fellowship involved in a program that will allow a greater range for the members to share their understandings. There will be opportunity to attend retreats each semester. Each month the Westminster Fellowship and the United Fellowship will meet together. A second meeting during the week will be encouraged so that all those interested may have time for more serious exploration of the Christian Faith in their lives and in the world.

As in the past, the United Student Fellowship will remain a student-led youth group which welcomes all those who wish to serve or participate in its program.

LARRY BURDGE, PRESIDENT

Westminster Fellowship

With the benefit of a new Student Center, the Presbyterian "Westminster Fellowship" has grown in numbers and in enthusiasm.

Completing its first full year in the new center the Fellowship has engaged in a wide range of activities. Early Sunday mornings a group goes to teach Sunday School at a local children's hospital, while others help the chaplain with the service at the Veteran's hospital nearby.

On Sunday evenings we meet for supper, and a student led worship service. Often we have our chaplain, or a visiting faculty member have a talk or lead a discussion.

Of course, there are many variations on our Sunday night programs, including Christmas caroling, square dancing, picnics, and our annual week-end of hiking, spelunking, or just plain resting, at the mountain retreat at Montreat, N. C.

It is hoped that this year, as in the past, we may continue to gain a fuller understanding of the Christian faith and realize the responsibilities of a mature Christian, through the medium of fellowship and our community services.

WESTMINSTER RAISES THE VOICE OF SONG

B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation

Hillel at Duke University is one of the 200 Foundations and Counselorships maintained by the B'nai B'rith (Jewish Service Organization) on American Campuses. Named after the great and gentle Jewish Talmudic sage who represented the finest in the tradition of Classical Judaism, Hillel is devoted to religious, cultural, social, and counseling activities among Jewish students.

These aims are carried out through worship services and festival observances, through social gatherings, cultural brunches, and discussion groups. Recently Hillel sponsored the appearance of author Harry Golden at a brunch meeting.

Wherever possible, Hillel works together with other student groups to further the highest goals of campus life. The Jewish students guide their activities through an elected student Cabinet, which in itself affords opportunity to its members to learn the basic problems and opportunities of leadership. Duke Hillel is under the general leadership of Rabbi Joseph Levine who resides in Chapel Hill.

HAROLD KLESMER, PRESIDENT

AUTHOR HARRY GOLDEN SPEAKS TO HILLEL

The Newman Club

The Newman Club on campus is concerned essentially with providing the Roman Catholic layman with a means for developing himself socially and intellectually. Through lectures, group projects, mixers, and conference series, the student is afforded an opportunity to deepen his knowledge of his Roman Catholic Religion and also share in experiences rewarding and enriching to his spiritual life.

Highlights of our program for this previous year included a six-week marriage series, a communion breakfast, lectures on the Catholic's role in a southern college community, such panel discussions as a Roman Catholic President of The United States, and several informal get-togethers.

Expectations for the immediate future include organized rides to Sunday Mass, a Spiritual Retreat, monthly communion breakfasts, and a Mass conducted on Campus, besides those programs presented bi-monthly.

The Newman Club is organized into several committees, each dealing with different aspects of our activity, notably, programing, social, publicity, membership, and finances, to provide ample opportunity for the Catholic student to direct his energies in constructive and wholesome action. In this manner, we are able to maintain an interesting and challenging itinerary for the conscientious Catholic undergraduate.

NEWMAN CLUB STUDY GROUP

YMCA

For several years the YMCA at Duke University has provided a creative outlet for the youthful idealism and generous impulses of many Duke men. The major thrust of the YMCA program is in the area of social service. Through its various committees, Duke men give freely of their time, energy and talents to such varied community agencies as Edgemont Community Center, Lakewood Boys' Club, and John Umstead Mental Hospital. On campus many hours are spent by volunteers from the YMCA orienting freshmen to campus life, conducting campus tours, ushering in the Chapel, editing the student Handbook and Directory, organizing the Campus Chest campaign, and planning Dad's Weekend.

In addition to its strong social service emphasis, in recent years the Duke YMCA has become a center of discussion and dialogue on important current issues. Problems of special concern to freshmen are discussed in the freshman Y council. National and international affairs are brought to the attention of Duke students through seminars and forums. The meaning and relevance of the Christian faith in the 20th century is explored by members of the Religious Life Committee. The YMCA cabinet which co-ordinates all the Y's activities also serves as a center of discussion about important campus and community problems.

Through its varied program the YMCA challenges Duke students to a larger, more humane, view of the world in which they live and offers them concrete opportunities to become responsibly involved.

Y-MAN ASSISTS NEW ARRIVAL

ADAIR PREWITT, PRESIDENT

Young Women's Christian Association

As a Young Women's Christian Association, our purpose is to "unite in the desire to realize a full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God. We determine to have a part in making this life possible for all people. In this task we seek to understand Jesus and to follow Him." This purpose becomes a reality through our program of study, discussion, and action. We attempt to understand our faith and our world and to relate them to each other. We now work in the areas of Religious Concern, Human Relations, World Affairs, Campus Affairs, Study of the Arts, Social Action, a New York U. N. Seminar, and a New York "New Man in the City" Seminar. A chairman in each area directs the activities of "Y" members interested in working with its concerns. These chairmen, a fellowship leader in each dormitory, the Publicity chairman, and the executive officers form the cabinet, which directs the program of the YWCA.

The Freshman "Y" is similar to the Senior YWCA but has its own officers and cabinet. The YWCA attempts to serve its purpose, its members, and the campus by stimulating thought toward deeper understanding and by providing opportunities for responsible action.

COED WORKS WITH CHILDREN AT EDMONT

Duke Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship

The Inter-Varsity group on this campus is composed of Duke fellows and girls who believe that Jesus Christ is relevant to the college student of today. Our program involves three main activities, to which all are invited. On Friday evenings there is a time of fellowship in which we share experiences, study God's Word, and join together in prayer. Inter-Varsity also holds a fall and spring conference for college students in North and South Carolina who are thinking seriously about their relationship to God. There, both spiritual nourishment and recreation combine to make it an unforgettable week end. But the highlight of our program comes every other Tuesday night at TNT, a meeting composed of light singing, skits, and thought-provoking speakers. The speakers are personal in their brief talks as they tell how Christ has given purpose to their lives. These informal meetings are aimed to present to the Duke student the wonderful life available through Jesus Christ. For further information about Duke's IV group, contact Ted Benjamin in H-311, Jay Jarman in the Phi Kap section, or Caryn McTighe in Southgate.
